“We are the granddaughters of the witches you weren’t able to burn.” Tish Thawer, The Witches of BlackBrook, (Witches of BlackBrook #1)

My creative practice is driven by curiosity and a fascination for alchemy.

As we near the darkest day of the year, I’ve designed a collection that incorporates materials that celebrate light, paying homage to Tasmania’s naturally occurring bioluminescent waters, auroras, and high-frequency rainbows.

Innovation in lab-grown gemstones provides the opportunity to incorporate high-quality materials into jewellery that bring more ethical & environmental consideration to my practice. An incredible stone that features in the show is Moissanite, a stone that has a hardness just under that of a diamond and features more brilliance.
